

TERRORISM IS A MAN MADE DISASTER: A SOCIOLOGICAL REVIEW

Miss. Veena Vasant Mooganur
Assistant Professor in Sociology ,
Shri Shripadodh Swamiji Government First Grade College Mudalagi, Karnataka, India.

ABSTRACT :

The motivation behind this article is to apply what social researchers have gained from many years of research on normal and innovative fiascos to all the more likely comprehend the present moment and potential long haul human effects of the 9/11 assaults. The transient reaction to the 9/11 assaults was like how individuals and networks regularly react to catastrophic events. One year after the assaults, news reports recommend that factors recognized in mechanical catastrophe examine as causing aggregate injury, as opposed to recuperation, are starting to surface. We distinguish three examples normally present in (however not confined to) the outcome of innovative fiascos that add to moderate recuperation and progressing aggregate injury and assess the probability that these variables will affect the recuperation procedure for those affected by the 9/11 assaults. We presume that because of impression of administrative disappointment, the probability of extended case, and vulnerability with respect to the psychological and physical wellbeing of unfortunate casualties, the social and mental effects of the 9/11 assaults will probably be serious and long haul. All things considered, the finishing up segment suggests the usage of a long haul clinical mediation program for moderating these potential endless effects and encouraging the auspicious recuperation of survivors.

KEYWORDS : Psychological Perception, Media, Pm Says , The 9/11 Terrorist Attacks, Spiritual Contradictions, Bioterrorism

INTRODUCTION

Albert Einstein: "Older men make war but younger men fight them".

Social structure and request, administration of society and legislative issues are subject to great correspondence, and great correspondence requires concurrence on meanings of wording. Terrorism can drastically impact the world, as appeared by the extensive and delayed impacts of the assaults in New York on eleventh September 2001. The meaning of psychological warfare will influence correspondence and reaction to this issue thus has ramifications for society and governmental issues. Anyway an appropriate general definition stays subtle on the grounds that diverse bodies, associations and government organizations have distinctive definitions to suit their own specific job, reason or inclination.

Man-made disasters are the aftereffect of human aim, blunder, or because of fizzled frameworks. They can be isolated into classes, for example, fear mongering, innovative risks, transportation dangers and natural mishaps. Terrorism is characterized as a demonstration that is savage or unsafe to human life, with the expectation of encouraging political or social destinations. The danger of psychological warfare influences all networks far and wide. Fear based oppressors, both Domestic and International, have exhibited they have the learning and ability to strike anyplace on the planet. Domestic Terrorism includes gatherings or people whose fear based oppressor exercises are coordinated at components of our legislature or populace without remote course. International Terrorism includes gatherings or people whose fear based oppressor exercises are remote based as well as coordinated by nations or gatherings outside the United States or whose exercises rise above national limits.

(Source: U.S. Bureau of Justice)

PSYCHOLOGICAL PERCEPTION OF TERRORISM

The significant normal for contemporary fear mongering is its surprise. The time and way of assaults are capricious and get focused on networks – typically blameless regular citizens – unsuspecting. Previously, focuses of were regularly political and emblematic figures, not the overall population, and the culprits gladly advised their identity and why they had acted. The reasons and focuses of contemporary fear mongering, then again, are frequently exceptionally indistinct. Psychological oppressors assault blameless regular citizens unpredictably without earlier notice, making assaults increasingly hard to forestall.

Despite the fact that the physical harm from dread assaults is ordinarily littler than that from substantial cataclysmic events, the mental harm of such fear assaults is critical. Early research performed by Paul Slovic and others in 1980s dove into this idea of mental harm. Utilizing psychometric systems, they characterized a few essential attributes of various types of hazard. Around then, in the wake of the Three Mile Island (TMI) atomic power plant mishap in 1979, their fundamental research target was atomic power plants. Slovic underlined the significance of mental impacts of hazard expressing that "regardless of the way that not a solitary individual kicked the bucket (in the TMI mishap), no other mishap in our history has created such exorbitant societal impacts." Reminiscent of the present fear assaults, they inferred that the atomic hazard is obscure, fear, wild, automatic, and prone to influence who and what is to come, so it has an exceptionally basic effect on the psyches of the overall population. Contemporary Terrorism shares a considerable lot of these qualities: it is typically obscure, terrifying, wild, automatic, and furthermore unpredictably deadly to even kids (who and what is to come). It doubtlessly has critical mental impacts on individuals' brains.

TERRORISM AND MEDIA

Terrorism is an extremely solid "item" which effectively pulls in a great deal of watchers. Most media forcefully move the item, psychological warfare, and help sow fear as individuals excitedly expend the item. In an original work on the "social enhancement of hazard," Roger Kasperson and associates portrayed how the general population impression of hazard connects with social and social frameworks, (for example, the media) and can be intensified amid the data conveyance process, in some cases bringing about "systematized fear." This intensification procedure can in the long run create certain open practices, some contrary and some constructive, and may result in interruptions in the public arena. Clearly, a few dangers are bound to be intensified than others. Psychological oppression, in view of its unique qualities, is effectively enhanced. Additionally, the present interpersonal organization correspondence advancements, for example, Facebook and Twitter, can quicken and reinforce the enhancement procedure.

PM SAYS TERRORISM IS A MAN-MADE DISASTER

Marking fear mongering as a "man-made" disaster, Prime Minister Manmohan Singh on Wednesday said the scourge was posing a potential threat over Asian nations and could trigger disaster over the outskirts.

"The danger of fear poses a potential threat in numerous parts of the area and could trigger catastrophes crosswise over districts," he said at the second Asian gathering on disaster chance administration here.

"The cutting edge social orders should likewise meet up to plan for man-made disaster like modern fiascos or those caused by psychological oppression assaults," he said.

The Prime Minister additionally requested that the worldwide network meet up to handle other man-made catastrophes like Avian-Flu and HIV-AIDS.

"We should likewise manage wellbeing calamities like the spread of HIV/AIDS and Avian Flu," he said.

The greatest debacle is the calamitous impact of environmental change, he said including, "the activity of one country can influence the activities of every single other country".

"I trust our area can meet up to handle man-made and additionally catastrophic events," he said.

Seeing that disaster knows no political limits and everybody is similarly helpless against it, Singh stated, "This is one territory where each country can meet up to locate a group and agreeable arrangement".

It is encouraging to realize that as of late, countries have met up to help in safeguard tasks whether it is the tidal wave or the seismic tremor in Jammu and Kashmir, he included.

"It is occupant upon every single one of us to create compelling national capacities," the Prime Minister said including, notwithstanding, that "we require more prominent reciprocal endeavors and collaboration". (PTI Updated: Wed, Nov 07 2007. 12 38 PM IST)

THE 9/11 TERRORIST ATTACKS

On the morning of 11 September 2001, 19 robbers took control of four business traveler planes flying out of airplane terminals on the east bank of the United States.

Two of the airplane was intentionally flown into the principle two towers (the Twin Towers) of the World Trade Center in New York, with a third hitting the Pentagon in Virginia.

The fourth plane never achieved its planned target, slamming in Pennsylvania. It is trusted that the travelers and group overwhelmed the robbers and took control of the plane.

Symbolic attacks

The Twin Towers were broadly viewed as images of America's capacity and impact. The Pentagon is the central station of the US Department of Defense.

Both 110-story World Trade Center towers in this way fallen and considerable harm was caused to one wing of the Pentagon. Various different structures at the World Trade Center site in lower Manhattan were pulverized or seriously harmed.

The aggregate death toll on 9/11 was about 3,000, including the 19 ruffians. It was the most exceedingly terrible death toll because of a psychological militant episode on US soil.

The days that pursued saw a critical impact on world monetary markets and universal certainty.

Suspicion falls on al-Qaeda

Doubt before long fell on the extreme Sunni Islamist gathering; al-Qaeda ('The Base' in Arabic) established in 1988 and driven by Saudi-conceived Osama Bin Laden.

There was valid justification for this. Albeit hard to affirm, it is thought al-Qaeda's association in world Terrorism can be followed back to 1993, with the principal World Trade Center bombarding.

Throughout the following 8 years, al-Qaeda were involved in a progression of real assaults on US powers: the shooting down of two American Black Hawk helicopters in Somalia in October 1993, the slaughtering of 19 Americans in a besieging at a military lodging complex in Saudi Arabia in 1996, the shelling of US government offices in Dar Es Salaam and Nairobi in 1998, with the loss of 223 lives, and the suicide assault on the USS Cole in 2000, which murdered 17 servicemen and injured 39.

In 1996 Bin Laden required his adherents to "dispatch a guerrilla war against American powers and remove the heathens from the Arabian Peninsula"

Not long after the 1998 international safe haven bombings, The Federal Bureau of Investigation set Bin Laden on their Ten Most Wanted rundown, offering a reward of $25million for his catch.

A new kind of enemy

The evening of 11 September, with al-Qaeda generally accepted to have led the assaults, President George W Bush portrayed the occasions of that day as "shrewd, detestable demonstrations of dread" and said the US was "at war with another and distinctive sort of foe". The assault was upbraided by governments around the world.

In October 2001, assaults were propelled on Afghanistan by western alliance powers related to the counter Taliban Afghan Northern Alliance

SPIRITUAL CONTRADICTIONS

Belgacem's total criminal history incorporates sedate managing, furnished burglary, robbery and receipt of stolen merchandise. Posthumous toxicology tests uncovered the nearness of liquor, cannabis and cocaine in his blood. It's conceivable that Belgacem was both intensely mindful of, and profoundly awkward with, this harsh good incoherency.

Salman Ramadan Abedi, the ongoing Manchester Arena suicide plane, was normal who drank vodka and smoked maryjane, as per reports from his companions. You could contend this helped him adapt to a feeling of social relocation as a separated, second era, European worker; an inclination that he was not Libyan enough, nor British enough. You could likewise conclude that coming as he did from a religious family, drink and medications incomprehensibly assuaged and intensified his sentiments of disgrace. The previous summer, Mohamed Lahouaiej-Bouhlel "addressed the call of ISIS" by driving a truck through a Bastille Day march in Nice, killing 86 individuals. A long way from being a dedicated, rehearsing Muslim, the same number of might presume, he ate pork and had an inclination for liquor, drugs and unbridled sex, with the two people, as per proof assembled by police.

BIOTERRORISM

A bioterrorism assault is the conscious arrival of infections, microorganisms, or different germs (operators) used to cause sickness or demise in individuals, creatures, or plants. These operators are normally found in nature, however it is conceivable that they could be changed to expand their capacity to cause sickness, make them impervious to current meds, or to build their capacity to be spread into the earth. Natural operators can be spread through the air, through water, or in nourishment. Psychological militants may utilize organic operators since they can be to a great degree hard to recognize and don't make ailment for a few hours a few days. Some bioterrorism specialists, similar to the smallpox infection, can be spread from individual to individual and a few, similar to Bacillus anthracis, can't. [From the CDC, Center for Disease Control website]

CONCLUSION

The best methods for crushing psychological warfare incorporate ways that some of them are identified with Muslims and some of them identified with presumptuous forces. Haughty forces should stop budgetary, political, calculated and profound backings of Islamic fear based oppressor. Tragically, a few Muslims are the infantry of egotistical forces and they are abused by pompous forces like U.S for formation of disunity among Muslims and depiction negative picture of Islam. The second arrangement is that Muslim heads ought to present the genuine message of Islam to the world. Sadly, radical Muslims in the name are Muslim, yet their practices are obviously against the unadulterated lessons of the Prophet Muhammad. Likewise, non-Muslims shouldn't sum up Terrorism idea to all Muslims and they need to recognize moderate Muslims whose practices depend on the Quran and radical Muslims which have their very own comprehension of Islam. Muslims must be joined together and don't enable radical Muslims to advance disunity among them.

Helpful people and peaceful objector have the profound conviction that in the event that we can get to a point where everybody's needs are met, both traditional and psychological oppressor wars could end. I question this in light of the fact that there will dependably be subset of individuals who will dependably need more influence, more riches, more domain, a greater amount of everything and have no ethical requirements about taking what they need from others by savagery. Their pioneers might be grown-up guys like Pol Pot or al-Baghdadi, yet their troopers are made essentially out of youthful, disappointed, forceful excite looking for men who have sociopathic propensities are still too youthful to even think about having the full utilization of their pre-frontal cortex, which when completely develop moderates impulsivity and hostility and upgrades the capacity to pass judgment on dangers versus benefits. That is the reason young fellows are alluded to as "gun grain".

REFERENCE

- Abbott, Susan L. and Lisa A.H. McChesney. "Disaster Relief: The One Fund Boston Model." Boston Bar Journal 58, no. 2 (Spring 2014). Retrieved Nov. 1, 2014
- Brent K. Marshall, J. Steven Picou, Duane A. Gill, (2003), Terrorism As Disaster: Selected Commonalities And Long-Term Recovery For 9/11 Survivors, In Lee Clarke (Ed.) Terrorism And Disaster: New Threats, New Ideas (Research In Social Problems And Public Policy, Volume 11) Emerald Group Publishing Limited, Pp.73 – 96
- Coady, C.A.J., 1985, "The Morality of Terrorism", Philosophy, 60: 47–69.
- , 2001, "Terrorism", in Lawrence C. Becker and Charlotte B. Becker (eds.), Encyclopedia of Ethics, 2nd edn., New York and London: Routledge, vol. 3, 1696–99.
- , 2004, "Terrorism and Innocence", Journal of Ethics, 8: 37–58.
- Ford Foundation (2003) "Responding to the 9/11 Terrorist Attacks: Lessons from Relief and Recovery in New York City." Retrieved November 7, 2014
- www.livemint.com
- www.emeraldinsight.com
- www.weforum.org
- www.pitt.libguides.com
- www.bbc.co.uk
- www.brookings.edu
- www.quora.com

Miss. Veena Vasant Mooganur

Assistant Professor in Sociology , Shri Shripadodh Swamiji Government First Grade College Mudalagi, Karnataka, India.