INTRODUCTION

It can straightforwardly be conceded that in characterizing religion, the greater part of the Indian masterminds follow the definition given by the western scholars. As the western masterminds accept that the strict methodology is mystical, so the Indian scholars keep up with that religion is some type of belief in a higher power. This perspective on western scholars is by all accounts a reverberation of a Scottish scholar and thinker Robert Stone. As indicated by Rock, both belief in higher powers and religion are the same thing. In his talk he says the difficulty of anything over belief in a higher power. Additionally, there is no religion which is not as much as belief in a higher power. This point is expressed by William James in another manner. According to he, "Anything shy of God isn't normal, anything over God is beyond the realm of possibilities."

One more meaning of religion is given by Galloway which is most certainly relevant to belief in a higher power. As per him, "Man's confidence in a power past himself by which he looks to fulfill profound necessities and gains strength of life, and which he communicates in demonstrations of love and administration."

By this definition Galloway attempts to keep up with that the fundamental component of religion is a confidence in a power past men which fulfills the close to home part of men.

In making sense of the significance of religion Taylor says that religion is the confidence in profound creatures. However, his clarification of the importance of religion doesn't fulfill a normal psyche as he doesn't provide us with an unmistakable image of the idea of profound creatures.

Max Muller, a German conceived rationalist, provides us with a dubious meaning of religion. He says that religion allows for the perception of boundlessness to make sense of the concept of religion.

There are three unique parts of strict awareness, viz., mind, feeling and activity. Yet, while characterizing religion various masterminds underscore both of the angles. As per Herber Spencer, religion is a sort of speculation by which individuals endeavor to understand the universe. His definition subsequently underscores the scholarly part of religion. Different scholars like Mc Taggard underscores the close-to-home angle disregarding different perspectives. Furthermore, Frazer emphasizes just the decision and behavior when defining religion. Yet, the meaning of religion is by all accounts pretty much good is put sent by Robert Rock, as he embraces every one of the three parts of religion. As per him, "Religion is man"s faith in a being or creatures mightier than himself and out of reach to his faculties yet not apathetic regarding his opinions and activities, with the sentiments and practices which stream from such a conviction."

The previously mentioned definition and investigation of religion isn't adequate. There are such countless meanings of religion given by various scholars at various time of history however none can provide us with a total image of it. "Religion is difficult to characterize, not because there is such an insignificant slice of it, but since there is so a lot." It is truth that God is the focal component of religion and men have understood certainty on Him and they practice every one of their endeavors to make community with Him. Consequently without referencing this part of religion no meaning of it can provide us with a total image of religion.

OBJECTIVES:

- To study the concept of religion
- To perceive the position of religion in the society

RESEARCH METHODOLOGY:

Clarification serves as the motivation for this evaluation. It was suggested that multiple locations, such as books, magazines, and different circulations, be used to gather the essential discretionary data. After that, the data was sorted and handled in accordance with decisions and closures.

ORIGIN OF THE IDEA OF RELIGION:

There are various hypotheses in regards to the beginning of the idea of religion. Yet, it can't be surely said that when and how strict thoughts arose in man. It is additionally surely can't be said that what is the beginning of the thoughts of religion. Every one of these are because of the way that there is no wide agreement among the scholars of this field concerning the beginning of religion. Yet, some individuals immovably accept that strict thoughts are natural in man. No different creatures aside from man bear this intuitive component. Man can be recognized from different creatures from two points: reason and religion. Man has reason while different creatures don't and for that reason men are called „rational animals“. Essentially, men are strict while different creatures are not. Men bear both limited and endless highlights. At the actual commencement of human race on the planet, men were uninformed about the various occasions that happened in nature around them. Be that as it may, they were interested to know the happenings and likewise, they applied their endeavors. They needed to confront the different normal catastrophes like tempests, floods, lightning; perilous creatures, starvation and so on and they couldn't defeat these circumstances. Therefore, they needed to envision an imperceptible power mightier than themselves upon whom they depended for help, strength and alleviation. In this manner dread and interest are the principal factors liable for the rise of strict propensity in old individuals. They likewise accepted that this concealed and undetectable power would be useful in their introduction to the world, distress, advanced age lastly in getting salvation. They in some cases considered God as their object of adoration.

There are various structures, for example, father, companion, sweetheart, darling, and ace through which they attempt to accomplish a connection with God. In this manner, to meet their obliviousness and to get the strength and fortitude to confront normal catastrophes, men consistently relied upon a nonexistent presence, the aftereffect of which is named "God" in religion.

DIFFERENT PARTS OF RELIGION:

There are various parts of religion, for example, inside and outside, individual and social. In strict awareness a close to home component is available. The profound components are thoughts, considerations and sentiments. Not just that, it likewise concerns man's connection to God. Hence these close-to-home components as well as scholarly components are alluded by inside angle. Aside from this a significant part of religion is down-to-earth exercises, for example, rituals and functions. These down-to-earth exercises are various courses through what men express their strict sentiments. Subsequently these commonsense exercises are alluded in outer part of religion.

Yet, even though it is asserted that God is the focal component of religion, there is religion without God or divine beings. A portion of these religions are-Buddhism, Jainism and Comte's religion of humankind. Crawley also maintains that "precious ceremony" is the essential element of religion. He accepts that religion is conceivable without making any reference to God or divine beings. But some scholars are of the assessment that without reference to God the genuine feeling of religion is preposterous. Numerous others guarantee that the people who don't accept that the truth of God in their religion, there is reference of fellowship among „man“ and something past man“ in their religion.

Religion is, truth be told, a singular matter. Individual secures strict experience and he has conviction on it. He by and by acknowledges strict encounters in his day to day existence. He accepts that salvation can be achieved through performing strict exercises. Be that as it may, to a social thinker, social part of religion is more significant and conveys most noteworthy importance. All of the world's remarkable faiths emphasize this social point of view. It is directly related to how religion plays a big role in sustaining, advancing, and supporting social unity. The religion which underscores this social angle is the religion of mankind, albeit in customary sense this perspective isn't perceived as religion. In underlining the social part of religion Blackmar and Gillin, the popular sociologists express that without local area love, no strict confidence can get by for long time. They are of the assessment that a living religion might lose all its significance assuming the devotee and admirer of that religion stops venerating together.

JOB OF STRICT ESTABLISHMENTS IN THE PUBLIC ARENA:

As religion so its establishments additionally assume a significant part in public activity. None can deny the way that the various types of social organizations, for example, homegrown, monetary and political effect on strict foundations. In any case, it is likewise a fact that these establishments are in some cases impacted by strict foundations. A significant part of religion is supplication and various classes of individuals having a place with various stations of society collect I strict establishments for performing petition and love. By these exercises there structures normal sentiments which in this manner further produce a typical opinions and partnership among the admirers of a specific religion. At times it is found that the individuals from a specific religion join as one, and for the more prominent interest of the general public they perform different helpful exercises. It is clear from the over that strict foundations perform not just their strict exercises , they additionally release various kinds of exercises connected with social government assistance, for example, magnanimous clinics, schools, homes for the destitute. These establishments additionally run halfway houses and gather cash for the needy individuals.

It can't be rejected that religion has an outer type of social control. The various exercises of individuals and their various circles of public activity are as yet impacted by strict rituals and functions. Individuals for the most part express their strict sentiments through customs and services. It is likewise a fact that practically every one of the parts of lives of crude individuals were covered by strict practices, albeit these were unrefined and had no exact association. We observe that there are different significant events in our public activity, for example, birth, marriage, collecting, hunting, passing and so on and in this large number of exercises strict rituals were acted in crude social orders. By doing these exercises there fostered a typical inclination s and activities which are a lot of other than strict capabilities. In crude social orders as well as in present day cultures strict exercises possess a significant spot. The various events of public activity, for example, birth, demise, marriage and so on strict rituals are performed. Comparable exercises are found in the occasions related with monetary life too. Besides, it is found that, in practically all networks strict rituals are normal works on during different events in public activity, for example, initiation of another structure, pledge taking and so on. From the above portrayal of the job of religion in public activity, it is clear that a standard request of methodology is created by religion in the public eye and consequently it assists with controlling the general public.

Religion assists with forming the personality of an individual and consequently, it molds public activity. It gives them a sense of social significance in their minds. In complying with the social regulations to regard the older folks and to show compassion towards the sensations of others, or to release the social commitments steadfastly, the job of religion is gigantic. In those cases, it goes about as an educator. Not just this, a feeling of individual inclination among individuals having a place with various networks is likewise educated by religion.

Also, religion instructs that the man's love and administrations to God will be genuinely provided that he loves and serves mankind. In creating moral cognizance among individuals, religion goes about as a motivating component. Religion upholds consistency of conduct and it fortifies social fortitude and along these lines goes about as an instrument in balancing out friendly request.

In crude age the impact of religion was extremely perfect in controlling society and this component isn't completely lost even today. Public activity of crude individuals were constrained by rousing God-dread to them however in present day age individuals are propelled not by dread but rather by the expectation for the fulfillment of ethical and respectable life. Accordingly by cultivating devoted opinions in men, religion assists with keeping up with social coordination.

In portraying the job of religion Dr. S. Radhakrishnan says that religion makes countless impacts. Religion ensures values as well as gives significance to life. In addition, the certainty to go on undertakings is likewise taught in our brain by religion. Accordingly portraying the job of religion he says, "Religion is the discipline which contacts the still, small voice and assists us with battling with fiendishness and corruption, saves us from ravenousness, desire and disdain, discharges moral power and gives boldness in the venture of saving the world".

Individuals live in underdeveloped nations, for example, India, Africa, Brazil and so on determine their feeling of life from religion and as such religion is vital to them. They find the solutions of many inquiries that show up to them. The inquiries, for example, what our identity is? What is the reason for life? What is life and what is demise? Is there anything after this life? - are extremely normal for person and they are interested to have replies of these inquiries. In any case, in underdeveloped nations science isn't so evolved to address these inquiries. In this manner, it is religion from which they look to find solutions of these inquiries.

REMARKS:

Up to this point we have examined, it is clear that religion goes about as an instrument of social control and incorporation. Yet, these are not all of religion. There are numerous dim sides of religion which requirements notice.

From the pages of history we find that religion made struggle and disunity in the public eye. The glaring instances of these are - struggle between the Protestants and Roman Catholics, between the Hindus and the Muslims. Not just had these, the contention of religion prompted the strict conflicts of the sixteenth 100 years. Generally speaking it is demonstrated that strict enthusiasm is answerable for much cruel gore. In some cases it is seen that religion makes a snag in the advancement of the nonconformist in like manner individuals. This was unmistakable in the medieval times where free enquiry and autonomous reasoning was defeated by religion.

Once more, there are such countless unethical demonstrations that have been happening for the sake of religion and thus society and its individuals have been languishing. In 20th century this strict bigotry has been expanded in a fast manner. The destruction of the Babri Masjid on the sixth December, 1992, the obliteration of Chapel on the ninth August, 1998 at Ahmedabad, the primitive homicide of an Australian Teacher Graham Stains and her two children in Orissa on 23rd January, 1999 are a portion of the instances of this strict bigotry. The present common sentiments among the various networks of society are the glaring illustration of the damaging parts of religion. Certain individuals deliberately use religion for their advantage. Most importantly, clashes are wherever in our social orders for the sake of religion. Subsequently noticing the current state of religion, that's what certain individuals think on the off chance that religion could be destroyed from the general public then society as well as its individuals will be saved and they will live calmly. That religion is an instrument of social disharmony is clear from different severe commotions held in different periods, even today, in different countries of the world.

CONCLUSION:

Up until this point I play depicted the part of religion in the public arena, obviously the negative part of religion is colossal in our general public. Not just this, religion limits free reasoning of individuals. It creates a feeling of deadness in man and subsequently makes him unaware to the real happenings of the world. It trains individuals to live in the realm of determinism. Individuals fail to remember the limit of their free reasoning and which at last makes them gruff in breaking down the regular peculiarities experimentally. It is the case that in crude society science was not evolved and individuals were uninformed about the happenings of normal peculiarities. Around then religion was important to control the uncouth and uninformed individuals. Individuals were happy with the responses given by strict organizations. Indeed, even in middle age period individuals were persuaded that the sun moves round the earth and testing which the extraordinary researcher Galileo, on a charge of blasphemy, needed to use whatever is left of his life detained at home. Yet, presently it is logically demonstrated that the earth moves round the sun. Consequently assuming that institutional religion is killed from the general public, individuals will live calmly and there will be less chance of fights and gore among individuals. They can likewise comprehend the happenings of regular peculiarities deductively.
